HISTORY

The Nairobi Coffee Exchange auctions are a quality-based payment system that functions as the nerve centre of a well-oiled industry built upon decades of lab-based Agri-research, applied farming and a strong network of cooperatives. At the exchanges, small farmers have a 'seat at the table' so to speak, where they can access a wide range of international buyers, who have the will and capital to outbid one another, in the perennial quest for a perfect cup.

Truth be told, Kenya's growers are owed much of today's industry praise. For generations they have pushed the envelope and tested the limits of farming and processing capabilities in order to embrace advances in growing science.
